How to do acrylic flow painting

To do acrylic flow painting, follow these steps:

1. Choose your colors. You can use any color of acrylic paint that you like. However, some colors work better than others for flow painting. For example, bright colors tend to create more vibrant artwork than dark colors.

2. Thin the paint. The paint should be thin enough to flow easily. You can thin the paint with water or a medium. If you are using a medium, follow the manufacturer's instructions for thinning the paint.
3. Pour the paint onto your surface. You can pour the paint directly onto your canvas or other surface. Alternatively, you can pour the paint into a cup or container and then pour it onto your surface. The amount of paint that you use will depend on the size of your surface and the desired effect.
4. Tilt and move your surface. Once you have poured the paint onto your surface, tilt and move it around to create the desired effect. You can tilt the surface in different directions and move it up and down or side to side. The movement of the surface will cause the paint to flow and spread in different ways.
5. Use a hairdryer (optional). You can use a hairdryer to speed up the drying process of the paint. However, be careful not to overheat the paint, as this can cause it to crack or bubble.
