In 1160 CE, the Rambam was forced to flee Cordoba with his family due to the persecution of Jews by the Almohads, a Muslim sect that had conquered Spain. The Rambam and his family traveled to Fez, Morocco, and then to Egypt, where they settled in the city of Fustat. In Egypt, the Rambam continued his studies and began to write. He wrote extensively on Jewish philosophy, law, and medicine, and his work has had a profound impact on Jewish thought and practice.
